

South Denver Death Cafe

First Friday of the Month at the Southglenn
Library
12-1:30pm

A Death Café is a simple gathering with one shared intention; to open honest conversation about death, so we might live more fully and love more deeply while we're here.

There's no agenda, no ideology, and no attempt to lead anyone to conclusions about life, death, or what may follow.

It's simply a respectful space — open, unstructured, and free of discrimination, where all voices and silences are equally welcome.

You're invited to bring your curiosity, your questions, or simply your presence.

Come as you are. Speak or listen as you feel moved in the moment.

This is not a support group or a place for counseling,
but if you're in need of grief or bereavement resources, we'll help connect you with the right kind of care.

Always not-for-profit. Always held in kindness.
Let's share a few moments together, let's talk about death,
and celebrate the preciousness of being alive.

Facilitated by Lauren Bear and Mary Ozanic

email laurenbear.colorado@gmail.com with questions